A dry and warm year. Between October and April, rainfall was 60% lower than average, with little rain until the heavy downpours at the end of spring which refreshed the vines.

Summer was cool, and temperatures remained moderate in September, favouring slower ripening.

Acidity remained at good levels and the vines preserved freshness until the harvest, which began on 17 September with moderate yields.

Elegance and fluidity stand out in this vintage of silky tannins and fabulous ripeness.

Recognisable in its genuine minerality and concentration. All class and terroir.
